Overview

All faiths centre their teachings on one expression. Harmony of spirit, body, and intellect. Everyone has said the same prayer to God, Shanti, for both the living and the dead, since the beginning of time. Just the setting where the Divine and the Sublime cohabit may be found in the Char Dham, which is also known as the Deo Bhumi, The Adobe of the Gods. Once you reach there, you will be captivated by its serene beauty and utter majesty, which will transport you to a realm of spirituality where you will find serenity and modesty. Your journey to the Char Dhams will be an unforgettable encounter with the grandeur and majesty of nature, which is both humbling and enormous in its magnificence. Every person on Earth has a right to the Himalayas, the most magnificent and loftiest mountain range in the planet. From the beginning of time, the sages and saints of India have been inspired by the majestic quality of this "Adobe of Snows," and pilgrims and visitors from all over the globe have been drawn to its amazing beauty and serene quiet.

- ⦿ Day 10: Rudraprayag to Srinagar to Devprayag to Rishikesh to Haridwar

Day 1:

Drive from Haridwar to Barkot

Set off for Barkot, at the base of Yamunotri, this morning. We will take a diversion via Mussoorie to see Kempty Falls. Make your way to your hotel or campsite upon your arrival in Barkot. You may take it easy and recharge your batteries for the Pahad Yatra of Yamunotri the next day throughout the day. Spend the night at Barkot after your meal (dinner).

Day 2:

From Barkot/ Kharsali to Yamunotri and back to Barkot

Start your day with breakfast and make your way to Janki Chatti (8 km) and Hanumanchatti (40 km). This is the starting point for the First Pahad Yatra, a five-kilometer journey to Yamunotri. On your walk, you have the option to rent a Doli or a horse (Cost Not Included). The trail winds its way through a verdant valley dotted with cactus, rhododendrons, conifers, and other flora native to the Himalayas. At an elevation of 3,291 metres, Yamunotri is the westernmost Char Dham shrine, while Banderpunch, at 6,361 metres, dominates the landscape. The river Yamuna flows from the sacred site of Yamunotri, who is also the sister of Varna, the deity of death. One of Surya the Sun's daughters is Yamuna. The river's true headwaters are located at an elevation of 4,321 metres, on the Champasar Glacier, which is located 1 km in front of the temple. Return to Barkot by the same path, where you may check into a hotel or camp, after taking a sacred plunge in the Yamuna River and performing Pooja upon your arrival in Yamunotri in the afternoon. Staying at a hotel in Barkot for the night and dinner.

Day 3:

Drive from Barkot to Uttarkashi

Check out of the Barkot hotel after breakfast and we will start the journey towards Uttarkashi. Please check into the hotel upon your arrival. Known for its historical sites, temples, and ashrams, Uttarkashi is on the banks of the Bhagirathi River. Afternoon: Pay a visit to the world-renowned Vishwanath Temple. Stay at Uttarkashi for dinner and the night.

Day 4:

Drive from Uttarkashi to Gangotri and back

Enjoy your breakfast at the hotel before setting off on your journey to Gangotri. Gangotri, at an elevation of 3048 metres, is situated in the breathtaking Garhwal Himalayas. The Holy Ganges River, formerly known as Bhagirathi, is the perfect place to soak your feet in the hallowed waters upon reaching Gangotri. Make a stop to the Gangotri Temple. King Bhagirathi prayed to Lord Shiva at a holy stone next to an 18th-century temple devoted to Goddess Ganga. Here is where the Ganga is said to have made landfall. The white granite temple towers 20 feet above the ground. Return to Uttarkashi in the late afternoon after you do the Pooja. Stay at Uttarkashi for dinner and rest for the night.

Day 5:

Drive from Uttarkashi to Guptkashi or Sitapur

Check out of the hotel and go for Guptkashi, Rampur, or Sitapur after an early breakfast. Make your hotel reservation upon arrival. There will be plenty of time to sightsee in Guptkashi town today. Spend the night in a motel or tent in Guptkashi, Rampur, or Sitapur. In this case, we have made the programme work with both the hike and the helicopter options for covering the Kedarnath Ji Yatra. Because of this, we are offering three consecutive nights' lodging in Sitapur, Rampur, or Guptkashi here.

Day 6:

Drive from Guptkashi to Sonprayag to Kedarnath

After a hearty breakfast, it's time to say goodbye to the hotel and hit the road to Sonprayag. This is the starting point for the 21-kilometer trek to Kedarnath. On your walk, you have the option to rent a Doli or a horse (Cost Not Included). Check into government campgrounds and lodges upon arrival. Public campgrounds or lodges for the night and dinner. Or, depending on your abilities and preferences, you may go back to Sonprayag. Take note that guests who want to use the helicopter service may return to Sitapur or their hotel the very same day. Our reservation for the next three nights has been confirmed. However, this does not cover overnight stays at Kedarnath Ji. Passengers will be directly charged for this. Occasionally, we are able to provide a hand with making lodging arrangements at Kedarnath Ji. A major Ganges tributary, the Mandakini, begins its journey near Kedarnath and continues via Gaurikund. Along the way, you will hear pilgrims calling out "Jai Bholenath." The mountains would periodically be shrouded in fog, which would gradually disperse, exposing a gleaming, dazzling peak that seemed ready to burst the clouds.

Day 7:

From Kedarnath to Sonprayag to Sitapur/Rampur

You wake up before the sun comes up, wash your face, and then make it to the temple by 4:45 in the morning to do the 'Abhishek' to Kedarnath Shiva. Afterwards, you will begin the 20-kilometer return walk from Kedarnath to Sonprayag. At Sonprayag Car Parking, you'll find the cars that will transport you to your Sitapura hotel. Sitapur or Rampur for dinner and the night.

Day 8:

From Sitapur to Rampur to Guptkashi to Joshimath and to Badrinath

Leaving the hotel at 8:00 in the morning, you will travel to Badrinath via Joshimath. You will reach Badrinath after travelling over some breathtaking Ghat roads. Check into the hotel as soon as you arrive. You are prepared to travel to the Badrinath Temple for darshan in the evening after you have had some drinks and slept. However, a visit to Tapt Kund (Hot Spring) for a wash is required before proceeding to the temple. The Shri Badrinath Ji Temple, dedicated to Vishnu, is a 15-meter-tall cone-shaped structure with a tiny dome shaped like a gilded bull and a spire. Going back to the hotel later. Staying at the hotel for dinner and the night.

Day 9:

From Badrinath to Joshimath and Rudraprayag

After bathing in the Taptkund in the early morning, pilgrims receive the Darshan of Badrivishal. Ancestral Pinddan Shraddh (Pitrus) is an important event that involves Brahamakapal. Mana, Vyas Gufa, Maatamoorti, Charanpaduka, Bhimkund, and the Mukh of the Saraswati River are among the other fascinating tourist spots. Not far from Badrinathjee, within three km. The holy city of Joshimath sits above the hills that surround the meeting point of the Alaknanda and Dhauliganga rivers. Among the four mathas that Adi Shankaracharya founded, Joshimath serves as Badrinath's winter residence. The idol is transported to Joshimath and placed in the temple so that worshippers may honour it. The municipality is home to several additional temples. The Nir Singh temple, which houses a Vishnu deity, is the holiest of them. The people of Badrinath believe that the valley would vanish the day this god's left arm withers entirely, and that the gods will move their dwelling to Bhavishya Badri in the neighbouring Niti Valley. The meeting point of the Nandakini and Alaknanda rivers is known as Nandprayag.

Day 10:

From Rudraprayag to Srinagar to Devprayag to Rishikesh to Haridwar

After a heavy breakfast, you'll hit the road heading downhill to the holy city of Rishikesh, often known as the Yoga Capital of the World. As part of your Rishikesh tour, when you get there you'll witness Ram Jhula and Laxman Jhula. By the end of the day, you will be dropped off at the railway station in Haridwar, ready for your departure. Here in Haridwar, on this last day, our services come to an end. On the other hand, travellers planning to leave from Delhi Or, if you would want to spend an extra night in Haridwar, you may enlist our help in arranging these services for a little fee. We pray that you have a long, healthy, and spiritually fulfilling life, and that the powerful Godheads and abodes shower you with their benefits.
