Overview

One of the most incredible places to go trekking is the ChoptaTungnath trek, which can be found in the Gharwal area of the Himalayas in Uttarakhand. Trekking enthusiasts will find the nature sanctuary to be the ideal place to get away. The Chopta trip is sometimes referred to be a pilgrimage trip due to the fact that it passes through the Tungnath temple in the middle of the journey between Chopta and Chandrshila. People are required to pay a visit to the ancient temple of Tugnath, which is the Shiva temple. This temple is an important component of Hindu mythology. The journey to ChoptaTungnath is risk-free and involves a method that is less difficult to go to the summit of the mountain. Anyone is able to do the Chopta trek, which is rated as an easy level of difficulty.

Since you will be spending seven to eight hours in the car, you may do things like listen to music, play antakshari, engage in conversation with other passengers, or explore and take pictures of the beautiful scenery from the window. Tungnath, which is one of the PanchKedars and is the highest Shiv Temple in the world, will be our destination when we reach an altitude of 3,680 metres. There is even additional reason why you should not pass up the opportunity to participate in this one! Simply continue our journey for a few more km, and we will arrive at Chandrashila Peak, which is the highest point of our journey. We have a view of the higher Himalayan peaks, including Nanda Devi, Bandarpunch, Chaukhamba, and Kedar Peak, from this vantage point, which encompasses a full 180 degrees. After some time has passed, we will begin our descent back to Chopta. At Chopta, we will have dinner and spend the night.
